

Robert had a hankering for spicy food - peppery Thai, kicky Cajan, fiery Mexican, and anything with a zip of jalapeño. So another common gift from the kids was various types of hot sauces, rubs, and spices. He used many of these in another of his passions - grilling and smoking meat. He probably enjoyed chatting with passing neighbors while he monitored the grill just as much as the actual eating of his specialty ribs and Boston butts. Despite his recipe experiments, his favorite source of heat remained Frank's RedHot Sauce - he truly put that $#!t on everything!

If you need a little spice in your life, help yourself to some Frank's and think of Robert when your tongue starts to sizzle.

